Emerging Talent
Programme

Make a difference in this city

You can make a positive impact on the life of Londoners through a career in housing and regeneration. In social housing you are supporting potentially vulnerable people with a vital human need. In town planning you help set the ambition for how the city will grow and evolve, supporting the community and protecting the environment. Regeneration and development teams drive economic activity focused on generating business success and social value.

An exciting range of professional careers

The Emerging Talent Programme provides a unique opportunity to find the career path in housing and regeneration that suits you. Working with a range of employers the programme will provide insight into a range of different professional roles which could include Project Managers, Housing Officers, Planning Consultants, Community Engagement Officers, Development Managers and Policy Officers.

Your opportunity

- 21 months paid employment at £23,000-£28,000 per annum
- Three work placements, each in a different employer, providing you with insight into different career paths in housing and regeneration – all based in London
- An exclusive programme of training and development events focused on developing key skills and behaviours that support success in the workplace
- Regular guidance from an individual mentor
- Support in securing a permanent role in housing and regeneration at the end of the programme

Who is this opportunity for?

Currently the professional and managerial workforce in housing and regeneration does not reflect the diversity of London's population. The Emerging Talent Programme is aimed at individuals from ethnic minority communities who have a strong motivation to work in this sector. This opportunity is ideal for anyone at the start of their career or looking to change direction. You might be a recent graduate or finished secondary school a few years ago with work or volunteering experience.

‘The Emerging Talent Programme is a successful opportunity to start a great career in housing and regeneration’

Santokh Kaulder,
London Borough of Newham

‘I enjoy working in a sector where I can see where my job makes a positive difference. The housing and regeneration sector needs more diverse talent to represent the communities we work in’

Tariro Violet Pugh,
Metropolitan Thames Valley Housing
